

Introducing a brand new class for
Real Estate Agents and Appraisers

Understanding High Performance Homes

Approved for 7 hours of Continuing Education Credit by SC LLR

New building codes, voluntary building standards and changes in technology are making new homes more efficient and healthier than homes from 20, 10 and even five years ago. Consumers are hearing about high performance homes and they are asking questions that you will need to be able to answer.

This class has been designed to help you understand what makes high performance homes work, how they stack up to traditionally built homes, and how they are scientifically tested, verified and, in some cases, certified in a third-party program.

Be among the first to take this brand new class that was developed by the HBA of Greater Columbia Green Building Council.

This class is approved for 7 hours of Continuing Education credit by the SC LLR Appraisers Board. For Real Estate Licensees, this class will be applied toward your Elective Credit Requirements.
